1. The Commission on Human Rights was established in 1946 as the first international body to deal with human rights. It was created by the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations.

2. The Commission's mandate was to promote and protect human rights. It did this through a number of mechanisms, including the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, and the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights.

3. The Commission also conducted investigations and inquiries into human rights violations. It was the first international body to do this.

4. The Commission's work was largely done through its subsidiary organs, the Human Rights Commission and the Human Rights Council.
